

A photograph of a wooden cross in the ground. The cross is made of two weathered wooden sticks. A vibrant red flower is tied to the right arm of the cross with a green ribbon. In the foreground, a dark-skinned hand is visible, with fingers slightly curled. The background is a blurred, dry, brownish ground with some white debris.

Pentecostalism and Witchcraft

Spiritual Warfare in Africa and Melanesia

EDITED BY KNUT RIO, MICHELLE
MACCARTHY, RUY BLANES

Contemporary Anthropology of Religion

Series editors
Don Seeman
Department of Religion
Emory University
Atlanta, GA, USA

Tulasi Srinivas
Department of Liberal Arts and Interdisciplinary Studies
Emerson College
Boston, MA, USA

Contemporary Anthropology of Religion is the official book series of the Society for the Anthropology of Religion, a section of the American Anthropological Association. Books in the series explore a variety of issues relating to current theoretical or comparative issues in the study of religion. These include the relation between religion and the body, social memory, gender, ethnoreligious violence, globalization, modernity, and multiculturalism, among others. Recent historical events have suggested that religion plays a central role in the contemporary world, and Contemporary Anthropology of Religion provides a crucial forum for the expansion of our understanding of religion globally.

More information about this series at <http://www.springer.com/series/14916>